1. A railroad inspector observed an average of two freight trains during the day, and one or two trains during the night, moving in western direction on the stretch Seddin - Eselitz (Z62) during the second week of October. Each train consisted of twenty-five cars.
2. Each of these trains was loaded with twelve to fifteen twin-engined airplanes; the planes were disassembled, and the wings were carried on separate cars. Six to eight cars of each train were filled with Soviet Air Force escort personnel.
